This kitchen is used whenever the weather permits. Then the landlord takes off the role of the manager and wears those of an "amateur chef", as he likes to define himself.

"My job leads me to be often away from home", he concludes, "When I come back, I like to relax and cook for my family and friends. But I want to be able to do it by staying with them all the time! "

Elegant Studio Kitchen

Design:

Allure kitchens are professional in terms of functionality, ergonomics and materials, and are made with craftsmanship accuracy where nothing is left to chance, everything is studied and studied in detail to make them unique.

The functional aspects of Allure kitchens combine an essential and timeless design, and a constructive expertise due to the use of high technology and craftsmanship. They are made of AISI 304 steel - biologically neutral metal that does not release any substance into food, resists corrosion, temperatures up to 500 ° and is 100% recyclable. The steel can be customized with a glossy, orbited finish or it can be painted, or it can be combined with other materials such as natural stone and wood.

Suggestive Apartment

Clean and Neat Square Door Design

Design:

Even the kitchen, with its antique-effect walls, reflects this fascinating approach and presents itself as a warm and 'cozy' environment, suggesting a calm and relaxed atmosphere.

With the typical square doors and the rigorous and formal design, which suggests a clean and tidy image of the kitchen, this wall version of Allure - entirely produced in AISI 304 stainless steel, in an orbited finish - is composed of two practical modules, placed facing each other, to make the dining space central. The first, equipped with storage spaces, sees the work area, cooking and washing area coexist on the same floor, while the second has been configured to integrate the oven and accommodate other storage compartments, the entire floor can be used here as a additional and larger space to carry out the various daily activities. Allure was deliberately designed without upper wall units, to ensure greater visual freedom and make the kitchen the protagonist of the space. The cleanliness and elegance of this version of Allure help to emphasize the sophisticated atmosphere and vintage mood of the entire home.

An Atelier kitchen...

Design:

The wall units in the washing and preparation area covered with Fenix, here in a refined and feminine powder pink, give uniqueness and character to the entire project. The matt color of the wall units, recalling the nuances of the characteristic quartz agglomerate of the floor, generates a line of aesthetic coherence that gives order and balance to the environment.

Finally, large space is dedicated to household appliances, all integrated into the stainless steel structure of the kitchen: refrigerator, double oven, dishwasher, induction hob and wine cellar.

Like a precious jewel, the bright and extremely elegant kitchen has completely transformed the appearance of this apartment, creating a space that is both functional and, why not, glamorous.

But that's not all ... To enjoy a good aperitif in company while waiting for dinner or to cool off during the hottest hours, he wanted to integrate a refrigerated wine cellar into his outdoor kitchen.

Its glass door allows you to see the bottles, which are kept at the right temperature even in summer. A small "outdoor" cellar where you can always keep a small supply of Italian wines close at hand, of which the chef is a great admirer.

A breathtaking view of the lake.

A home kitchen and an outdoor kitchen

Living in a house with a garden is the desire of many. And if this garden plunges directly into the lake, offering its inhabitants a breathtaking view, desire turns into a dream.

The outdoor kitchen, located in an area protected by the projecting roof, was designed to welcome friends and to cook surrounded by greenery in every season.

As soon as the weather permits, we start cooking and dining in the garden, the green heart of the house. And when the cold season arrives, it is sufficient to slide two windows to transform the porch that houses the outdoor kitchen into a closed and heated environment.

Design:

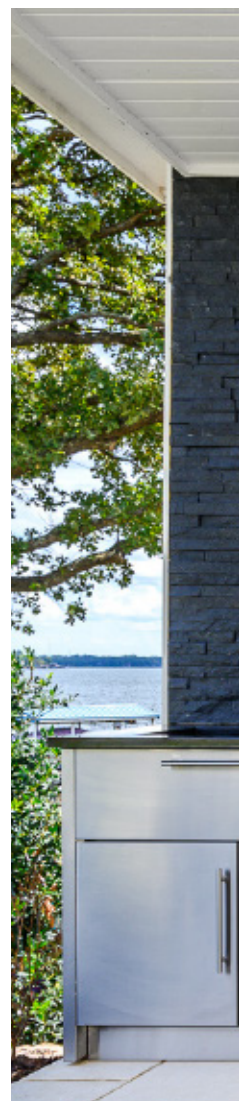

For the exterior, The host wants a stainless steel kitchen. Being the second kitchen, they opted for a compact but well organized model for different types of cooking. On the top, in addition to the work area, there is an induction hob for traditional cuisine and an American grill for large grilled fish, meat and vegetables.

Suspended above the kitchen, the owners wanted to install a large industrial hood which, by sucking up any odors, allows you to cook any food even when the windows are closed.

With this solution, the hosts, both passionate about cooking, saw their dream come true in the best possible way. They can cook their favorite dishes with a professional kitchen, without giving up the company of friends and guests, surrounded by an amazing panorama. And all this, for 12 months a year.
